

Hijacked W. German Plane Pilot Dead

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — With one pilot dead and 86 hostages still aboard, the hijackers of a West German airliner landed in Somalia today and let two ransom deadlines pass without carrying out a threat to blow up the plane.

A West German government spokesman said in Bonn the pilot was apparently shot dead before the Lufthansa Boeing 737 jet took off late Sunday from South Yemen. His body was dumped onto the runway shortly after it landed without permission in Mogadishu, the Somali capital.

The four hijackers have demanded the release of 13 terrorists imprisoned in West Germany and Turkey and payment of $15 million, but no effort to meet the demands was reported as the hijackers extended their deadline first to 10 a.m., EDT, then to 10:30 a.m.

The West German government let a Sunday deadline pass without any attempt at compliance. However, it sent negotiators to the airport in Mogadishu in an effort to save the hostages, who include a California woman with a heart condition and her 3-year-old son.

Armed soldiers surrounded the plane at a distance in front of the main terminal in the Somali capital — the jet's sixth stop since two Arabic-speaking men and two women commandeered it over the French Riviera last Thursday.

The West German government said it could not confirm beyond doubt that the dead man's body was that of the chief pilot, Joergen Schumann. But a spokesman said the dead man had a notebook containing the name Monika Schumann, the chief pilot's wife.

Monika Schumann, who has sons aged 11 and 2, told a German newspaper last week that her husband had expected his plane might be hijacked some day, and had told her: "If that happens, just stay calm. I'm not the type for dangerous heroes."

The death left 83 passengers and four crew members aboard the plane with the four hijackers. There was speculation that it would be dangerous for the plane to take off without a replacement pilot.

A spokesman for the Somali embassy in Nairobi said the plane was being refueled and was expected to take off again later in the day. But the Somali news agency said the government formed a ministerial committee including the West German ambassador to negotiate with the hijackers.

The Somali agency said a West German delegation led by a government minister was expected in Mogadishu shortly.

The kidnapers of West German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer also sent word that they would kill him if the hijackers' demands were not met by Sunday afternoon. There was no indication today whether Schleyer had been killed.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt continued to meet with his team of crisis advisers today. A spokesman said earlier the government was pursuing "all realistic possibilities" to free the hostages. The Turkish government said it would not consider freeing the two Palestinians unless West Germany released its 11 prisoners.

The Lufthansa Boeing 737 jetliner was hijacked on a flight from Majorca to West Germany on Thursday by two Arabic-speaking men and two women armed with pistols and plastic explosives.

The 83 passengers included an American woman with heart trouble, Christine Maria Santiago, 44, of Santee, Calif., and her 5-year-old son, Leo. Another son reported that the State Department appealed for her release because of her health, but the hijackers refused after finding a two-day supply of heart medicine in her purse.

The plane's stop in Mogadishu was its sixth, after Rome, Nicosia, Bahrain, Dubai and Aden, the capital of South Yemen.

Houston Con Wins Hard Money

HUNTSVILLE (AP)—After two weeks of no winner in the hard money contest at the 36th annual Texas prison rodeo, a first-time contestant won the $75 prize Sunday. David McCoy, serving a 15-year prison term from Houston, collected his money after grabbing a tobacco sack from the horns of a charging bull within the five-minute time period. McCoy was one of forty convicts going after the prize. The previous Sunday, Jimmy McCombs, doing 15 years from Grand Prairie, had received serious facial injuries during the hard money event. After the event Sunday, however, an announcement was made that McCombs is expected to recover completely from his injuries. Country recording star Johnny Rodriguez also shared top honors Sunday with more than 50 convict riders before 22,500 fans at the third Sunday performance of this year's rodeo.

Clear Skies Dominate Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Clear skies dominated the weather picture today as Texans continued to enjoy mild, dry fall weather. Only a few clouds over Far West Texas early today marred an otherwise perfectly clear morning. Early morning temperatures ranged from the 40s in the mountains of Southwest Texas and in North Texas to the lower 60s along the gulf coast and in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Some early morning readings included 49 at Amarillo, 52 at Wichita Falls, 43 at Texarkana, 48 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 49 at Austin, 40 at Lubbock, 43 at Houston, 62 at Brownsville, 55 at Del Rio, 57 at San Angelo, 52 at El Paso and 47 at Lubbock. Forecasts called for mostly fair and skies today with temperature readings ranging from the 70s in North Texas to the 80s in South Texas and the upper 80s in the Big Bend country of Southwest Texas.

Davis Defense To Get Day In Court

AMARILLO (AP)—Defense attorneys may finally get their chance to begin introducing evidence today they hope will sway a state court jury to acquit Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis of capital murder charges. Davis, 44, is on trial in the shooting death last summer of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn. She died in a midnight shooting spree at the $6 million Davis mansion in Fort Worth that left another man dead and two wounded. Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla, was wounded and her boyfriend, Stan Farr, died in the carnage. A visitor to the mansion, Gus Gavril Jr., was also wounded. "The state has now corroborated its three eyewitnesses to this case with abundant physical and scientific evidence," prosecutor Marvin Collins said after Saturday's session. "Specifically, the state has proved that the bullet found under the body of Andrea Wilborn was fired from the same gun that killed Stan Farr." Fort Worth crime lab director Frank Shiller provided the last critical link in the state's case, matching up bullets recovered from the shooting scene.

President Carter heads for limousine as demonstrators hold up a banner across the street protesting the neutron bomb Sunday.

Demonstrators disrupted services at the First Baptist Church where Carter was worshipping.

Demonstrators Disrupt Carter Church Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four demonstrators who disrupted President Carter's church service by denouncing the neutron bomb are free on personal recognizance while the fifth is continuing his protest in jail.

The three men and two women, ejected from the First Baptist Church by ushers Sunday morning, were charged with "disturbing a religious congregation."

A sixth person who took part in the reading was not arrested.

Leaving the church, the President stopped briefly when another protester shouted for him to "veto the neutron bomb." Unruffled, Carter turned, asked, "What's that?" and then said, "They're fine young people."

Later, after returning to the White House, he told reporters: "I agree with their (the demonstrators') objective in eliminating nuclear weapons. (But) I think they were mistaken in trying to disrupt the church services."

"The Secret Service didn't feel I was in danger, and neither did I."

The neutron bomb is a high-radiation nuclear weapon designed to kill people while leaving buildings relatively intact. Carter is considering deployment of the weapon as a deterrent against a possible Warsaw Pact invasion of Western Europe.

Critics of the neutron bomb say it is inhumane and would increase the chances of a nuclear confrontation. Carter aides have said the President will decide before the end of the year whether to produce and deploy it.

Carter, his wife Rosalynn, 9-year-old daughter Amy and a group of friends from Georgia, including Mrs. Carter's former Bible teacher, attended services at the First Baptist Church.

The President and his wife attended adult Bible class in the back balcony, then took their usual seats in the sixth row on the right side of the 175-year-old stone-and-block church.

As Pastor Charles Trentham stepped to the pulpit to begin his sermon, the first of the demonstrators, dressed in slacks and a brown sweater, stood up and began to read the anti-bomb statement.

An usher grabbed the protester, put his hand over the man's mouth, pulled him out of the pew and led him to the door.

A second protester, Elizabeth McAlister, a former Roman Catholic nun who, married antiwar priest Philip Berrigan, stood in another pew across the aisle and continued the reading.

An usher tried to take the statement out of her hand, then sat her down in the pew. She was not immediately removed from the church and was not arrested.

Another protester then stood up and continued the statement but was gagged by an usher, subdued and led to the door. Three other demonstrators, trying to read the statement, were also silenced and escorted from the church.

Marshallites In Dark At San Antonio Meet

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—An earthquake is more likely to occur in San Antonio than a blackout, a utility company official said in a newspaper article last summer.

The ground didn't move Sunday night but the lights sure went out over most of this South Texas city where some residents were without electrical power for almost three hours.

Power disappeared at about 7:10 p.m. Much of the city had power restored by about 8:40 p.m. with full power back at 10:02 p.m. when electricity from other power sources in Texas flowed into the system, according to City Power Service (CPS) officials.

Attending the Texas Municipal League meeting Sunday in San Antonio from Marshall are City Commissioners William Huffman, Dr. W. Q. Burns, Sam Birmingham and H. A. (Tony) Bridge.

Also attending are City Manager Ray Jackson, City Secretary Donald Duncan, Finance Officer Ed Gowanlock, Parks and Recreation Director Cullen Jennings, Community Development Director George Losby, Wayne Bolling, administrative assistant to the city manager, Fire Chief H. E. (Gene) Walker and Assistant Police Chief Cecil Wallace.

CPS spokesmen said the outage was caused by a static line that snapped and wrapped around major transmission lines from the Calaveras Lake power station about 34 south of San Antonio, the nation's 10th largest city.

The entanglement caused the line to short circuit, the spokesmen said. They said overloaded generators in other areas of utility's grid system automatically shut off but a backup generator failed to kick on.

Hospitals used emergency power sources during the blackout, officials said.

Police Chief Emil Peters said there were some reports of looting, but added that he would not know if the reports were accurate until later today.

CPS board chairman Tom Berg said Sunday night that the utility would announce a commission of inquiry to report on the blackout and what will be done to prevent a recurrence.

CPS general manager J.K. Spruce said that earlier reports of an explosion at the Calaveras Lake plant were probably caused by the noise of steam escaping from boilers just after the short circuit on the lines.

As to the backup generator's failure to work, Spruce blamed it on some "freak reason." He added that the reserve generator is tested daily.

President Stepping Up Drive For Treaty Ratification

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter is stepping up his drive for Senate ratification of the Panama Canal treaty.

Carter set aside time today to meet with a new blue-ribbon committee of business and labor leaders, former military officers and members of past administrations who support the treaty, which is under fire from foreign-policy conservatives.

Members of the group, headed by Averill Harriman, the one-time ambassador to Moscow who has served as a government envoy in many capacities, organized the panel without official White House involvement, one aide said.

But others said the committee grew out of a breakfast for "opinion leaders" held at the White House recently by a task force headed by Hamilton Jordan, a top presidential assistant.

Members of the committee include Gen. Maxwell Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; George Ball, former undersecretary of state; AFL-CIO President George Meany; Lady Bird Johnson; former senator and ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge; former Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott; Chairman Irving Shapiro of E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.; Chairman Robert Anderson of the Atlantic Richfield Co., and New York lawyer John McCloy.

The meeting followed a busy weekend at the White House. —The President's church services were disrupted Sunday by protesters against the neutron bomb. Carter told reporters at the White House when he returned from church that he considers the demonstrators "fine young people."

Without revealing whether he will decide against deploying the bomb, Carter said of the protesters: "I agree with their objective in eliminating nuclear weapons." But the President added that he thought the group was "mistaken in trying to disrupt the church services."

—A knowledgeable administration official said Carter got a message from Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan in which Dayan denied characterizing their recent talks as "brutal" and said he found them pleasant and productive.

Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz telephoned Secretary of State Cyrus Vance with the personal message from Dayan and asked that it be brought to Carter's attention, according to the official, who declined to be identified.

Carter said through a spokesman Friday he did not think the talks, held in New York earlier this month, were brutal and denied threatening Israel with isolation if it did not agree on preparations for Middle East peace talks.

—The White House made public on Saturday a Carter interview with newspaper editors and broadcast news directors during which the President said he is almost overwhelmed by all the things he is doing at once.

But Carter said during the session, which took place Friday at the White House, that he will not drop any initiatives because "I don't think it is in the best interests of the American people."

Carter has slipped below 50 per cent for the first time this month in his public approval rating.

Opinion

Members In Good Standing

Between 1960 and 1976, the FBI paid nearly $1.7 million to 301 people to become members of and report on the Socialist Workers Party and its youth affiliate, the Young Socialist Alliance.

The bureau was forced to make the disclosure in "discovery proceedings" arising out of the party's multi-million-dollar damage suit against it.

Since the SWP and YSA have never had a combined membership of more than their present 2,500, these 301 FBI informers represented 12 per cent of the two organizations' total strength and, one can surmise, must have provided a similar percentage of their operating budgets—courtesy of the U.S. taxpayer.

Just to be safe, the FBI also paid 1,000 other people who did not join but who also reported on the party, although it is not revealed what their total payments were.

All told, the FBI had the Socialist Workers Party under active surveillance for 38 years, from 1938 to 1976, without discovering a single instance of criminal or treasonable activity—which suggests that never in the course of human nincompoopery have so many been paid so much to spy so long on so few for so little purpose.

Proposed New Criminal Code

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON—Ten years of hard and thoughtful work have gone into the pending bill for recodification of the federal criminal code. Regrettably, this has to be said: The sponsors need to put in a few more months. In its present form, the measure simply will not do.

I offer that opinion reluctantly. The pending bill, S. 1437, is an enormous improvement over the ill-considered S. 1 of the 94th Congress. Few persons question the need for wholesale revision and modernization of a criminal code that has been patched together in bits and pieces over nearly 200 years. The principal sponsors, Senators Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and John McClellan of Arkansas, have done a generally commendable job.

The good aspects of the bill merit emphasis. For the first time, it is here proposed to establish firm guidelines for sentencing in criminal cases. The bill would establish five classes of felonies and three classes of misdemeanors. As a general proposition, judges would have to impose sentences according to policies laid down by a new Sentencing Commission. The procedures should go a long way toward eliminating the aberrations of judges who get too hard or too soft on guilty defendants.

In terms too clear to be misconstrued, the bill lays down the extra punishment that must be imposed for use of a firearm in committing a federal crime. "The court may not sentence the defendant to probation, but shall sentence him to a term of imprisonment of not less than two years." The two-year term must be imposed in addition to any other sentences, and cannot be served concurrently.

The pending measure junks some existing laws that should have been junked long ago—the Smith Act, the Logan Act, the last vestiges of the Comstock Act. In their place we would have sensible provisions dealing with espionage, treason and interstate commerce in obscene materials. The simple possession of less than 10 grams of marijuana would be left to the states to deal with.

Many other desirable features deserve applause. The proposed revisions would simplify 70 confusing federal statutes having to do with theft; the statutes dealing with "attempted" crimes would be beefed up; laws on bail jumping, bank sharking and racketeering would be strengthened. Fifty perjury statutes would be condensed to three. There is much that is good.

But in certain broad areas—areas usually subject to abuse because of their very broadness—the drafters of S. 1437 have gone too far. Whether wittingly or unwittingly, they have forged weapons that malicious prosecutors and despotic judges could put to terrible use. We of the press may perhaps be forgiven a certain sensitivity in these areas. We have seen timid tyrants on the federal bench impose gag orders, as in Baton Rouge six years ago, that had to be obeyed under pain of contempt—even though the orders were blatantly unconstitutional. We have seen reporters sent to jail for refusal to disclose the names of confidential sources. The pending bill imposes no effective restraints upon such judges. Indeed, the bill authorizes a judge to impose a three-year prison term plus fine "in any amount deemed just by the court" upon a reporter who protects a source. Senator Kennedy denies that the bill would permit any such thing, but unless words have lost their meaning, that is exactly what his bill would permit.

The bill presents dangers not only to the press, but to everyone else. Section 1681, for example, gives startling authority to any "public servant," meaning any federal bureaucrat, in times of flood or riot. Section 1223, purporting to deal with witness tampering, is phrased so broadly that it might punish "any act with intent to improperly influence the conduct of a legislative inquiry."

Time To Refocus His Presidency

By JAMES WIEGHART

WASHINGTON—President Carter is being urged by his closest advisers to curb the sweeping scope of his initiatives, both foreign and domestic, and channel his energies towards accomplishing the most important four or five items on his agenda for America.

But the advisers, both in and out of government, have not thus far met with any apparent success. Carter, now in the 10th month of his presidency, continues to press a bewildering array of domestic and foreign policy initiatives—many of them of major significance—which have clogged up the legislative mill in Capitol Hill, caused confusion and disarray within the massive, slow-moving federal bureaucracy and kept the rest of the world, friends and potential foes alike, in a state of flux.

This, coupled with his refusal to designate a chief-of-staff system at the White House to relieve him of all but the most important matters, has taxed Carter's exceptional physical and intellectual powers to a point that has raised concerns among his senior staff members.

There is no immediate anxiety among the White House staff over Carter's present state of health, physical or emotional. His most recent check-up shows Carter to be exceptionally fit at age 53 and senior staff members and cabinet officials who deal with the President on a day-by-day basis report that he is alert, energetic and well-informed about the subject at hand. But there is worry that he can safely continue at this pace for the rest of his presidency.

There is no denying the visible impact that the responsibilities of the Oval Office have had on him. The President has had to work long hours, often late into the night, to get the end of a long day. Even Carter doesn't deny this. He told an inquiring reporter at a recent White

Capitol Stuff

House picnic for members of Congress that he felt he has aged "about three years" since he took office last Jan. 20. And, there is concern bordering on panic that Carter's by now well-established habit of sprawling out a steady stream of significant proposals, recommendations and orders, relating to both foreign and domestic policy, is going to wreck his presidency.

The situation this weekend was a classic example. While Carter's top aides were assessing the damage done to the President's energy package by the Senate and trying to come up with a strategy to save as much of the bill as possible, Carter was out at Camp David working out the final details of still another massive and sweeping proposal, the administration's tax reform package, which promises to be even more controversial and difficult to handle than energy.

It was Carter himself who designated development of a comprehensive energy program as the nation's number one priority. After pressing for creation of a new Energy Department and leaning on Secretary James Schlesinger to rush out a massive energy proposal, Carter made a concerted media blitz to drum up public support for the measure.

But by the time Congress was even coming to grips with Carter's major energy proposals, the President had even since embarked on several other equally sweeping undertakings such as a $21 billion plan to overhaul the welfare system, a modified amnesty for illegal aliens, an historic strip mining bill, not to mention such bread-and-butter items as the $11 billion farm bill and congressional Whether recommendations by such diverse advisers as Vice-President Mondale, political adviser Hamilton Jordan and National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, that Carter ease off and focus on only several priority efforts at once, have not been heeded. It has been seen. But clearly his friends and advisers feel his presidency hangs in the balance.

Impending Jimmy Carter Crisis

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Jimmy Carter, the miracle worker of 1976, is now marked by critics as the political incompetent of 1977 whose compulsive industriousness has produced a swirl of confusing objectives and made him an easier prey for the vultures in Washington's power centers.

That a crisis now exists cannot be denied. The hope of Carter insiders that the President's popularity would survive in the countryside while his status fell in Washington was shattered by the NCB poll putting his approval rating at 46 per cent. What makes this descent alarmingly different from past presidential crises is that it comes with no war, no economic collapse and no major scandal.

Rather, its source is deep inside the methods and procedures of the Carter presidency. Although the President's popularity may surely rally, he is liable to stay in trouble so long as he conducts his office as he does now. Thus, the most disturbing fact in Washington today is that there is no signal yet pointing to any significant changes in the way Jimmy Carter functions as President.

But the most elaborate assertion of a belief that government can deal with the problems of the family comes in a new report by the Carnegie Council on Children, which argues that much of the transformation of family life can be ascribed to "rising expectations for what we want to give our children," the report urges the federal government to get busy and make those expectations realistic.

The Carnegie group wants the nation to have "a family policy as comprehensive as its defense policy." Although Carter's task force urged steps to revise government edicts that impinge on family life, the Carnegie sociologists propound a series of public-sector solutions in which "they get a Lyndon Johnson overachiever" just as the presidency was entering a dangerously weakened state induced by Vietnam and Watergate. Mr. Carter seeks to be a strong President in the Rooseveltian tradition at a time when the spirit of Congress makes that goal unachievable.

The inevitable defeats suffered in the collision between a massive program and an independent Congress with the bit in its teeth are compounded by the fact Mr. Carter not only is an outsider but came here boasting about it. Lacking real friends in Congress intimately tied to his fortunes, the President was set upon by Congressmen acting like vultures sniffing blood from 1800 Pennsylvania Avenue.

There are also vultures in his own administration. No recent administration has evidenced less personal loyalty to the President within the departments. Officials at the assistant secretary level, picked by heads of departments in Mr. Carter's "cabinet government," owe their jobs to the President rather than to the President's secretary.

The President and his staff are liable to be criticized by the President. Lobbying on Capitol Hill, usually a source of White House power, is also diffused within the departments.

In this situation, the President himself—whose political assessments on the road to the White House seldom have been checked in advance—has been expected to assess the situation and change it. Some senior aides believe the prodigious output of domestic and foreign initiatives must be slowed.

But like the sorcerer's apprentice, Mr. Carter is too busy to stop the process. A few insiders say his schedule is too fully booked to think seriously about his presidency. Aides proudly point to his appetite for official reading. He has devoted 28 full hours to studying the defense budget, and more such time is being set aside. He spent much of last week going over 200 pages packed with

A Word For Scrap Metal

World consumption of energy is projected to increase 4.6 per cent annually. World energy demand will more than double by 1990. Consumption of energy is projected to reach 320 quadrillion BTUs by 1990.

Natural gas, petroleum and coal provide the major sources for our energy consumption. These sources are being consumed at a much faster rate than their production. The well being and survival of mankind depends on energy—to heat homes and factories, to power automobiles, to keep factories running.

The recycling industry has repeatedly denounced energy waste. The industry through extensive research and development has found that substituting scrap iron for virgin iron ore in steel making provides a 74 per cent savings in energy. For every 100 tons of steel made from recycled scrap iron, the energy equivalent of 140,000 gallons of gasoline is conserved. In 1974 when 51.3 million tons

DKG Briefed On League Of Women Voters

Mrs. Nancy McClaran paraded the purposes of Delta Kappa Gamma Society and the League of Women Voters at a recent breakfast meeting of the Alpha Zeta Chapter, DKG International.

Using the DKG theme, "Reappraisal for Purposeful Action," the former League president noted that both were organized for a purpose and dedicated to action.

The League, an outgrowth of the Women's Suffrage, was founded by Mrs. Carrie Chatham Katt, who worked for women's rights. She wanted women to be informed on the issues involved, not just to vote but to vote intelligently, the speaker explained.

Members of the League are active in study, research, and presentation of questions of officials. Moore, chaired the regular business session that followed the breakfast and program at Gables Restaurant.

The League has been referred to as the "Little Old Ladies in Tennis Shoes" and sometimes as the "Plague of Women Voters," but when representatives of the League attend sessions of the legislature or question the law makers and public officials, they are noticed and respected. Mrs. McClaran brought out.

Rose Bowl Game Never On Sunday

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for letting your readers know that next year the Rose Bowl game will be played on January 2. Since your column appeared, we've received countless calls asking for verification.

The "Never On Sunday" tradition in Pasadena dates back to 1983, when tournament officials were first faced with the problem of disrupting church services with a parade. Next year will mark the 13th time our festival has been held on January 2 instead of on New Year's Day.

Perhaps your readers would like to know that the Rose Bowl game will be played on January 2 again in 1984, 1989, and 1996.

FOREST W. FOSTER, PASADENA DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS, TOURNAMENT OF ROSES ASSN.

DEAR FOREST: Thanks. The information will be helpful to those who wish to plan ahead.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to say that her girlfriend never shaved her armpits or used a deodorant, and you suggested that she tell her boyfriend that she was a virgin.

A simple anonymous note would solve the problem, and she could save time and embarrassment. We used this system in the government office where I worked, and it was very effective.

President, Mrs. Margie Moore, chaired the regular business session that followed the breakfast and program at Gables Restaurant.

The League has been referred to as the "Little Old Ladies in Tennis Shoes" and sometimes as the "Plague of Women Voters," but when representatives of the League attend sessions of the legislature or question the law makers and public officials, they are noticed and respected. Mrs. McClaran brought out.

At Longview Las Vegas Party Set

LONGVIEW—The General Exhibits Building of the Gregg County Fairgrounds will be the setting of the annual Las Vegas Party of the Longview Museum and Arts Center Guild on Oct. 27.

Longview or by phoning 733-6116. Tickets at $35 per couple are available through the museum office, 102 West College, Longview or by phoning 733-6116. Ark work, donated by area artists, will be displayed in the lobby of the First National Bank and the party. On view will be work by Brad Borders, Phyllis Haase, Bill Witherspoon, Bill Blevy, Amelia Walker, Rachel Blevy, and Shirley Handler.

The couple will make their home at 1604 Jackson Street in Commerce.

Money raised goes for support of the museum's full range of programs, including exhibitions, lectures, and classes for all ages.

A Lovelier You

YOUR SMILE-ABILITY

By Mary Sue Miller

When you step outdoors these spring mornings, do you feel all's right with the world? Plants are budding, leafy trees sway in the breeze, little window boxes and whole fields have a carpet of fragrant blossoms. Surely you smile, if just a quiver on your lips, at this largesse of nature.

It is said that a woman's smile brightens the atmosphere at every season. Indeed we are warmed by a warm, friendly smile. And how a good-natured smile does soften our difficulties and differences, on the bus or in the ballroom.

Yet some girls and women won't even smile at a good job—when it's on their own. One wonders whether a tight-lipped lady is as forbidding as she appears. She may not be. Beauty experts have found that smiles are often withheld because of doubts about attractiveness.

Sometimes, for instance, a mouth is so small that it smirks when it is stretched into a smile. Or the upper lip may be so short that a smiling expression exposes gum margins. All such quirks, of course, dampen the desire to smile, and the lips clamp shut.

What a pity, when the mobility and reach of the lips can be improved. It's done by the long, diligent practice of these routines:

1. Clench upper lip between teeth and say, "Moo." 2. Holding upper lip with teeth, grin as broadly as possible. 3. Hold lower lip in teeth and curl upper lip toward nose. 4. Repeat each part 10 times, very slowly and deliberately.

Your smile-ability just naturally increases. Your winsomeness, too!

BEAUTY KNOWS NO AGE Some women age before their time, some retain their youthful beauty and charm why? The secrets of non-age attractiveness are revealed in BEAUTY KNOWS NO AGE. Advice covers ways to a youthful figure, skin and hair; to flattering makeup, hairstyles and fashions. For your copy write to Mary Sue Miller in care of a newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin.

Dear Abby

Rose Bowl Game Never On Sunday

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for letting your readers know that next year the Rose Bowl game will be played on January 2. Since your column appeared, we've received countless calls asking for verification.

The "Never On Sunday" tradition in Pasadena dates back to 1983, when tournament officials were first faced with the problem of disrupting church services with a parade. Next year will mark the 13th time our festival has been held on January 2 instead of on New Year's Day.

Perhaps your readers would like to know that the Rose Bowl game will be played on January 2 again in 1984, 1989, and 1996.

FOREST W. FOSTER, PASADENA DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC RELATIONS, TOURNAMENT OF ROSES ASSN.

DEAR FOREST: Thanks. The information will be helpful to those who wish to plan ahead.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to say that her girlfriend never shaved her armpits or used a deodorant, and you suggested that she tell her boyfriend that she was a virgin.

A simple anonymous note would solve the problem, and she could save time and embarrassment. We used this system in the government office where I worked, and it was very effective.

VFW Auxiliary Gives $425 To Stroke Club

A check for $425 has been given to the Marshall Stroke Club by the Ladies Auxiliary to the VFW Post 3989. The money will be used by the newly formed stroke club to purchase a reported having sold seven language machines. Accepting the check Friday afternoon were Mrs. Carolyn Dumas, president, and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lloyd who were instrumental in organizing a club here. Mr. Lloyd, a stroke victim is a World War II veteran.

Presenting the check were Mrs. Verla Stanners, auxiliary president, and Mrs. Elizabeth Wilcox, rehabilitation chairman. The donation was made Thursday night at the regular meeting of the Auxiliary at the Post Home.

Plans were completed for the District 12 convention to be held here Nov. 19-20. Post Commander Bob Amidon expressed appreciation to the Auxiliary for their cooperation in all projects. Certificates for last year's activities, received to a recent school of instruction were distributed by Mrs. Dorothy Jones.
